Hello! I'm Manali, currently pursuing the final semester of my 2nd Masters course in Graphic Design at the National Institute of Design. A Graduate degree in Comparative Literature and my 1st Masters degree in Museology (not the study of Music, but Museum Management, Anthropology and Archiving) helped me to realize how much connected effective communication is to the use of visual elements.

Being deaf, life has always been a half-full, half-empty cup of experiences for me. As a designer I seek practical yet simple solutions to everyday problems, while staying positive and learning new methods to accomplish that. My interests include travelling, sketch-noting from design books, reading travelogues, clay-modelling, and watching films that celebrates inclusivity.

REASONS TO APPLY

Considering the experience of building and participating in different user feedback-oriented graphic solutions as a part of the design training at NID, I find such briefs to be rather encouraging and ideal for creative growth. I am positively optimistic that I can bring my multi-disciplinary learnings and skills to the table in such favourable, stimulating environment.
